When you get too involved in something, the best thing to do is back off about to here, and take a good look at it.

Julian Carroll Announces Candidacy For Lt. Governor

By BOB WESTON
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP) — Declaring his intention to bring a "new day" to Kentucky, State House Speaker Julian Carroll of Paducah announced Wednesday he will be a candidate for lieutenant governor as a running-mate of former Gov. Bert Combs.

Combs is expected to make an official announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination after he steps down June 5 as a judge in the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals.

The timing of Carroll's announcement was interpreted as a maneuver to leave no doubts about Combs' intention in the face of an anticipated announcement by Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford next week that he will run for governor.

Aides of the two Democratic gubernatorial prospects reportedly met in Louisville Tuesday, but failed to reach a solution that would prevent a confrontation in next year's primary.

Ford, contacted later in the day after a speaking engagement at Bardonia, said Carroll's entry into the race came as no surprise to him.

"Mr. Carroll's announcement will have no effect upon my candidacy for governor," the lieutenant governor added.

Carroll, 38, would give geographical balance to a ticket headed by Combs. With his roots in western Kentucky, Carroll could offset some of Ford's strength, as the lieutenant governor comes from the same part of the state. His hometown is Owensboro. Combs is a native of eastern Kentucky.

Most speculation on Ford's choice for a running-mate has centered on State Sen. Walter Dee Huddleston of Elizabethtown, the Democratic floor leader of the Upper Chamber.

Already in the race for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor is State Sen. Henry Beach of Louisville.

Reading from an eight-page statement at his hotel news conference, Carroll said, "... I have every reason to believe that on June 6, 1970, the day after Judge Combs leaves the federal bench, he will announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor."

"You can be assured that I would not be making my announcement today unless I firmly believed that Judge Combs will be a candidate for governor," he added. "The problems which we now face and will face in the Seventies in Kentucky demand both experience and enthusiasm, qualities which I strongly believe you will find in the team of Bert T. Combs and Julian Carroll."

Carroll singled out pollution control, and law and order as two of the major issues in the forthcoming campaign.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor,
I want to correct a very serious error made by me in a letter printed in your paper dated April 23. I used the term billion when I meant million. If you recall I called you asking if it could be a misprint and you assured me that it was not. I stand corrected by Kim Smith in his letter in which he correctly states that the amount spent on Apollo 13 was $375 million not $340 billion as stated by me.

Art works need proper illumination

NEW YORK (UPI)

To do justice to any work of art you enjoy - even child's yard-wide finger-paintings - use properly planned and focused lights.

Depending on regular room illumination won't do the job, says Rita Harold, a specialist in residential lighting.

"Good lighting not only enhances a painting but can make it a focal point or a decorative accent in a room," says Miss Harold.

The ways in which light can be used for emphasis are limited only by budget and the ingenuity of the designer.

"I sometimes think that the only time a painting is really seen and appreciated is in the store where it is purchased," Miss Harold said.

"You bring it home, hang it up and that's the end of that. Maybe you see it during the day, maybe you don't. And at night you probably don't see it at all except as a dark patch on the wall."

"Some tips from Miss Harold, of Westinghouse Electric Corp., include:

- Picture lighting should be so subtle that you may be unaware that a painting is lighted and only conscious that you can see every detail. Or it may be so subtle that the detail appears to pop right out of the frame but the entire painting doesn't shout - "Hey, look at me, I'm lighted."

The light should be positioned to avoid objectionable reflections of the fixture itself on the painting, especially if glass is used on the frame.

Glare can be controlled by the direction or angle between light source and painting. Since a painting is viewed in the home from many different directions, you should select the most likely viewing positions and arrange the lighting so that shadows are not cast by the frame. For flexibility and for light intensity, use a dimmer control.

Incandescent light is warm and natural in feeling. If fluorescent lighting is used for a painting, however, use the deluxe white colors - WWX to emphasize reds and CWX for greens and blues. Today paintings also are being lighted with tungsten halogen sources.

The best, though costliest, lighting arrangement is with recessed ceiling fixtures. However, these are only practical when planned for a new home or a remodeling.

The "now" way to display pictures is to devote an entire wall or wall area to framed art

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Stanley F. Yolles, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

"Thinking About Drinking"

"Thinking About Drinking" is the title of a booklet which, though designed primarily for youngsters, contains information useful for parents and others.

It was prepared by the U.S. Children's Bureau and the National Institute of Mental Health for young people as a basis for discussion of attitudes about drinking.

"Thinking About Drinking" reflects the latest findings in alcohol research. This research is being carried on and expanded through the efforts of the Institute's National Center for Prevention and Control of Alcoholism.

The contents of the booklet take a look at teenage drinking, presenting an objective, factual picture of various aspects of the matter.

There is also a "true-false" self-quizz of 19 questions dealing with facts, half-truths, and myths about alcohol. Information for answering the questions is also contained in the publication.

Another important section deals with "Handling your own drinking or non-drinking." This gives information for decision making. Following sections present significant questions on what families, a girl, a boy, or any young person may do in various "iffy" situations, such as, for example, what does a young person do if he is the only non-drinker at a party where everyone urges him to have a drink?

Why people react differently to alcohol is also covered. Various factors involved, physical and psychological, are discussed.

Physical factors which usually influence a person when he drinks include how fast he drinks, whether he has eaten, the type of beverage, body weight, and body chemistry.

Psychological factors considered are the situation in which drinking occurs, the person's mood, his attitudes, and his drinking experience.

A copy of the 32-page booklet, "Thinking About Drinking," Public Health Service Publication No. 1683 or Children's Bureau Publication No. 456, may be obtained for 20 cents from Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

ALMANAC

By United Press International
Today is Thursday, April 30, the 120th day of 1970 with 245 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1803 the United States obtained all French land west of the Mississippi River with the Louisiana Purchase. The U.S. paid $15 million.

In 1945 the body of Adolph Hitler was found in the ruins of a bunker in Berlin. He apparently committed suicide.

In 1945 Russian soldiers captured the Reichstag in Berlin and raised the Soviet flag over the Nazi capital.

In 1963 New Hampshire became the first state to legalize a state-run lottery since the end of the Louisiana lottery in 1894.

A thought for the day: American author Edward Newton said, "From contemplation one may become wise, but knowledge comes only from study."

JEWISH NAZI - Frank Collin, 25, head of the American Nazi Party - now called the White People's Socialist Party - in the Midwest looks unruffled in Chicago, where he is under arrest charged with giving "hate literature" to an 11-year-old girl. Collin is the son of a German Jew who spent three months in Hitler's concentration camp at Dachau before coming to the U.S. in 1938. The father changed his name from Cohn in 1946. But the son denies his Jewish heritage.

Bulletin Explains Small Businesses To Teenagers

In a switch on the old newspaper classic that assured Virginia of the existence of a Santa Claus, the National Federation of Independent Business is assuring today's teenagers that there is still small business in this country, and will be as long as the nation exists as they know it now.

This is the context of a special free public service bulletin published by the organization, titled "Youth and Small Business." It is written primarily for the high school teenager, and especially for those of extra-perception who feel that somehow opportunities have closed for them.

No attempt is made to impart to the young person any expertise in operating a business. Neither is it written for anyone planning on going into business immediately. In fact, the pamphlet encourages anyone who might be planning to start a business to take their time before making the plunge.

But it does advise young people to keep their options open so that when, and if, they do decide to engage in their own enterprise, they will have followed some recommendations that they can practice at present.

The pamphlet sketches the present scope of small business activity; o. e., 60 per cent of all people employed in private enterprise are found in independent business, and that 95 per cent of all business is small, and the other 5 per cent was at one time or another.

It also goes into reasons why small business will always be an important factor in the American economic life if the present structure of the nation endures.

The concept of the pamphlet was created by many educators reporting on the type of teenager often called "a teacher's despair."

These are the highly personable young people of better than average intelligence who could rate high academically, but instead are perhaps only mediocre students due largely to a lack of motivation. They cannot visualize themselves as subject to the regimentation required for a career in government themselves as subject to the regimentation required for a career in government or a big corporation, and value their independence.

At present, this group of teenagers have only the vaguest, if any, goal in life, and most of them will probably after leaving school work at several different jobs. Eventually, a certain percentage of them will set up for themselves.

Allen Triples And Homers For Cards, Braves Win 10-6

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

They call Richie Allen "Crash" for his ability to hit baseballs out of sight. It also could stand for the collision when his glove and a baseball came into contact. Allen hit a triple and a homer — his sixth — for the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night. But then he fought a losing battle with a ground ball in the ninth inning and the result was a 10-6 victory for the Atlanta Braves.

Allen, playing third base in place of the ailing Mike Shannon, had a chance to field a potential double-play grounder by Felix Millan with the score tied 6-6 and the bases loaded with one out in the ninth inning. Allen booted it to let in the deciding run in the key play of a five-run rally for the Braves.

After Allen's error let in the run that made it 7-6, Nelson Briles uncorked a wild pitch to let in another run and relief pitcher Bob Priddy followed with a two-run single to wrap up the scoring.

League Roundups

In the other games, Cincinnati edged Houston, 5-3, San Francisco downed New York, 8-4, Chicago drubbed Pittsburgh, 10-

Four Players Ejected In Red Sox-Oakland Game

By FRANK DE GEORGES
UPI Sports Writer

A beanball battle escalated into a confrontation during the Boston Red Sox' 5-3 victory over the Oakland Athletics Wednesday night. Before peace was restored, four players were ejected for fighting.

The brawl began quietly enough. Oakland suspected that Boston starter Sonny Siebert was a little too close to Athletic catcher Dave Duncan with a pitch or two. The A's also felt that Siebert was coming too close to opposing hurler Chuck Dobson. So Dobson hit Siebert in the fifth inning and Siebert retaliated by hitting Reggie Jackson with a pitch in the sixth.

Jackson then charged the mound and tackled Siebert. Both benches and bullpens cleared and several other players got into the fight. No one was seriously hurt and, after things calmed down, Siebert, Jackson, Oakland pitcher John Odom and Boston coach George Thomas were ejected.

Other Games

In other AL action, Baltimore smashed Chicago, 18-2, Detroit walloped Kansas City, 8-2, Washington blanked Milwaukee, 4-0, Minnesota nipped Cleveland, 1-0, and California trimmed New York, 3-2.

"If a pitcher throws at me I've got to fight him," said Jackson about the fracas. "I wasn't made but just being a man about it. I never get mad, but when you throw at me ... I don't take that."

Dobson said, "We had trouble with Siebert before. In 1968 when he was with the Indians we were at Cleveland and Siebert hit Sal Bando in the back I hit Sonny on the arm."

"I just hope it's over," added Jackson.

It may not be, however. Starting pitcher for today? John Odom, one of the ejected players.

4 Homers For O's

Paul Blair drove in six runs with three home runs and Elie Hendricks and Boog Powell also homered in Baltimore's romp over Chicago. Jim Palmer had an easy time of it for his third

Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI)—Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Monday set a deadline of May 30 for the Cincinnati Reds' to advise him whether the club's new Riverfront Stadium would be ready to host the 1970 All-Star Game, scheduled for July 14. Should the stadium not be completed in time, the game will be moved to Atlanta.

Thrift, however, said the NCAA was doing a lot of "assuming" because the Royals intend to abide by all the rules and the tryouts we are conducting are no different than any other baseball tryouts as far as college eligibility is concerned.

Overall, Thrift is exceptionally optimistic about the academy's success.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ewing Kauffman, multi-millionaire owner of the Kansas City Royals and a man used to seeing his ideas pay off, was explaining a new one to a friend.

"What do you think of my idea?" Kauffman asked his friend after he was through explaining it to him.

"Not much," the veteran baseball man told him candidly.

"I don't think it'll ever work," Kauffman is trying to find high school youngsters, with athletic backgrounds but preferably no baseball experience, and develop them into major leaguers while offering them a free education at the same time.

To implement his idea, Kauffman has built a baseball academy in Sarasota, Fla., due to open Aug. 15. Syd Thrift, who scouted 11 years for the Pittsburgh Pirates and signed such players as Al Oliver, Bob Robertson and Jerry May, is the director of the academy and is convinced the idea can succeed because he feels there are many youngsters in the country who would love to play baseball but do not have the opportunity.

To get candidates for the academy, Thrift sent out 21,000 questionnaires to high school athletic directors recently. A youngster must have a high school diploma with no remaining high school eligibility to qualify and also must show outstanding ability in one or more sports, preferably not baseball.

If a boy is accepted here's what he gets: Major league baseball training; courses in English, history, human relations, personal finance, speech, basic conditioning and personal health at Manatee Junior College near the academy; free room and board at the academy; use of such recreational facilities as a swimming pool, tennis court and lounge; paid up health and accident insurance, plus $100 per month for the first 90 days, $150 per month for the second 90 days and $200 a month thereafter. Each boy admitted will be signed to a professional baseball contract.

KC scouts will screen prospective candidates in tryouts and the NCAA did some mulling about any participant in the tryouts becoming ineligible for intercollegiate competition.

Southern Sidelines

By DAVID MOFFIT
UPI Sports Writer

ATLANTA (UPI)—Thousands of young men, many no longer recalled beyond a notation in a dusty yearbook, have tried their hand at professional baseball since Hoyt Wilhelm came off a farm 26 years ago to pitch for Mooreville in the now long-defunct North Carolina State League.

That was the summer of 1942. America had been in World War II barely six months and the then 18-year-old Wilhelm had only that one season before he swapped his baseball uniform for Army khaki.

Jackie Robinson had not yet broken baseball's color line; Mickey Mantle was a 10-year-old schoolboy back in Oklahoma; Eddie Matthews, also 10, was hunting rabbits down in Texas.

Robinson, Mantle, Matthews and a lot of other former baseball stars who came into the game long after Wilhelm first pitched at Mooreville have retired. But James Hoyt Wilhelm, who will be 47 years old July 26, is still pitching.

Soon, probably within the next week, the ageless knuckleballer will come striding out of the Atlanta Braves bullpen for his 1,000th major league appearance.

Wilhelm, up to Tuesday night's game at St. Louis, had pitched in 996 major league baseball games. Before Hoyt first came to the majors with the New York Giants in 1952, baseball immortal Cy Young held the record for most appearances by a pitcher with 906.

That 1,000th game will be more than just a milestone. It also will be a tribute to Wilhelm's determination.

Wounded in the Battle of the Bulge, a quarter of a century ago, Wilhelm returned to baseball but, despite some fine minor league seasons, had to wait seven years before making it to the majors.

Leo Durocher, against whose Cubs Wilhelm could reach his goal this weekend, brought Hoyt up as a relief pitcher in a $2,500 deal that proved one of the all-time bargains in baseball.

Wilhelm was 15-3 as a 29-year-old "rookie" and has been helping clubs ever since.

He helped pitch the Giants to the National League championship in 1954 and, 15 years later, helped the Braves win the NL's Western Conference title last season.

Wilhelm spent 13 years in the American League: 1957-69 and although he didn't pitch for any pennant winners during those years his 2.19 earned run average during those years was the league's best.

Atlanta picked up Wilhelm on waivers last Sept. 8 from the California Angels and that move won the West for the Braves. He made eight appearances for the Braves during a rugged September stretch run and had a hand in six victories—winning two himself and saving four others.

Unfortunately, for the Braves, Wilhelm was not eligible for the playoff series the Mets won in three straight and Atlanta manager Luman Harris insists "it might have been a different playoff if the old knuckleballer had been around."

Now in his 19th major league season, the balding Wilhelm needed only 11 appearances to reach the 1,000 mark.

"I never dreamed when I first came up that I'd stick around anywhere near this long—least, of all appear in so many games," Wilhelm said recently.

Only pitcher ever to lead both the National and American Leagues in lowest earned run average and possessor of a no-hitter against the Yankees back in 1958, Wilhelm holds a bundle of career records.

"That's behind me," Wilhelm says jokingly. "I figure the next 1,000 are going to be a lot easier."

Ducks are shown up

Experiments disclose he's a poor swimmer

ATLANTIC CITY (UPI): Science shattered a cherished illusion today.

Rather than being pre-eminent in swimming, the duck is a stumble bum at it.

His maximum sustainable speed is a mere 1.6 miles per hour. His efficiency rating is only 5 per cent. A ship is four to six times more efficient.

These disclosures illuminated an opening session of the 54th annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. They came from a study of energetics in exercise.

DOCTORS HENRY D. Prange and H. T. Hammel of Duke University, Durham, N. C., and the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, La Jolla, Cal., put mallard ducks to swimming against the tide on a water treadmill—a sluice in which the speed of the flowing water was precisely controlled.

This revealed their inability to speed. Their efficiency was rated by measurements of their oxygen consumption. Because food was the reward for their efforts, the ducks were assumed to have done their best.

THE SCIENTISTS found an excuse for them by comparing them to men performing a comparable task. That task is running against the resistance of air as the duck swims against the resistance of water. A running man is as inefficient as a swimming duck, Prange reported.

Anyway, he said, the speed of the ducks is probably limited by the same law of dynamics which limits the speed of a ship.

Dear Abby

Her housekeeping upsets mom!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Is there no way a mother can tell a lovely married daughter that she is the world's worst housekeeper? She is a perfectly wonderful young woman, but her house and children look like the wrath of God!

She came from a clean home and was taught how to do things, but for some reason she never quite "gets around" to doing them.

The iron and the needle and thread are complete strangers to her. She does her laundry only when she runs out of clean clothes.

Fortunately, her husband is a very patient man, but I'm afraid one of these days he will become disgusted and refuse to come home to such a disorganized mess.

Now, how do I tell this to my daughter who has never spoken a harsh word to me? She is sweet and kind. I hate to hurt her.

Perhaps she will read this and I won't have to.

MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: And what if she DOESN'T read this? Don't wait for her husband to lose patience and "refuse to come home." It may be too late then. Don't rule out the possibility that your daughter may have a physical problem. A thorough check-up may be in order. Have a mother-daughter talk and tell her what you've told me. It would be a kindness.

DEAR ABBY: That letter in your column signed "ODDBALL" could have been written by me, only he was a man, and I'm a woman. ODDBALL wrote that both his parents were dead and he hadn't been to the cemetery to visit their graves because it "fore him apart" to go out there. He further said he'd been a good son to them—so it wasn't a guilty conscience. He also said his brothers and sisters went to the cemetery regularly and said it made them feel "good"—but he just couldn't do it.

His question: "Should I go so my family won't think I'm disrespectful to the memory of my parents?" Your answer: "No. The time to visit parents is when they're living. Stay away and don't feel guilty."

Abby, that's what I've wanted to hear for 20 years. God bless you. May you live to be 100. Sign this.

ANOTHER ODDBALL

DEAR ODDBALL: Thanks. I'll settle for a lot less.

DEAR ABBY: Isn't it impolite to come right out and ask a 40-year-old man why he isn't married?

ROLAND

DEAR ROLAND: Yes. Especially if you think you know.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the little old lady who "borrowed" her neighbor's morning paper, read it, and didn't always remember to return it reminded me of my own experience.

My neighbor is also a sweet little old lady who gets up early in the morning, takes my morning paper, reads it, but doesn't always return it. She'd say, "I don't want to subscribe to the newspaper because I may not live another year."

Well, that was 10 years ago, and she's still bumming my paper.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1. to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Merle Norman Now Under New Manager

Latest addition to the business community of Murray is the newly decorated Merle Norman Cosmetic Studio at 107 N. 4th Street, which will hold a three-day formal opening from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. beginning today, according to Miss Beverly Calloway, owner and manager, who will serve as official hostess.

Unusual aspect of this grand opening, according to Miss Calloway is the offer of a free hour of beauty and a complimentary make-up to all girls and women who drop in or call for an appointment.

"In addition," Miss Calloway explained, "we'll serve refreshments, give everybody a favor—and there will be door prizes too."

The new Studio, a charming feminine boutique carrying a full line of Merle Norman Cosmetics, will function on a try-before-you-buy—premise based on the basic "three steps to beauty" philosophy of this 39-year-old California firm of cosmetics manufacturers.

In line with the overall philosophy of Merle Norman Cosmetics, Miss Calloway, completed an intensive training course at Paris, Tennessee and received additional training at Memphis, Tennessee, where she gained practical knowledge in cosmetics, complexion care and the art of make-up, along with fashion trends and color predictions for the seasons ahead.

The Merle Norman Cosmetic Studio will be open daily, Monday through Saturday, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Mrs. Calloway issued a cordial invitation to every girl and woman in Murray to drop in at 107 North 4th for special Grand Opening favors, or phone 753-6626, for an appointment for a free hour of beauty and a complimentary make-up.

Letter To Editor

ple have no idea of the piddling amount of money that the space program is subsisting on. I say most people have no idea of the piddling amount of money that the boys in Vietnam subsist on.

I am fully aware that the $375 million spent on Apollo 13 was not "heaved into space," but quite a bit of it was heaved into the pockets of that "greatest technological team" that was responsible for the most "impressive scientific project the world has ever known." I wonder if Mr. Smith would like to give an estimate of what he thinks the salary should be for a boy in Vietnam who puts his life on the line everyday and every night for a year. I wonder what he would consider a fair pension for a boy disabled mentally or physically or maybe both. Perhaps, $375 million would only bog down these boys with unnecessary money and little good would be achieved.

"I hope Mr. Smith's faith in President Nixon's plans to deal with the Vietnam war is not betrayed, but I do not share this faith.

Mrs. Robert Young
Almo, Ky.

Dear Editor:

Has no one disagreed with you and the Courier-Journal on the seventeen year locust? I also read something along the same line in the Paducah Democrat. I hate to be an odd ball, but I believe if you will check, you will find that in the south they mature in 13 years. So says my World Book Encyclopedia and also Dynamic Biology by Baker-Mills that I studied under Mrs. Eula Mae Daugherty out at Lynn Grove some time between 1936 and 1940. No, I'm not of the Pepsi generation either.

I distinctly remember them "coming" in 1937, 1950, and 1963 so if they come this year, they'll surprise me. The "dry fly" or "dog-day fly" is a two year species of the Cicada. I was waiting for some one to disagree but since I hadn't heard of it, my weakness for opening my big mouth got the upper hand of me again.

Parolee Returned To Prison

BENTON, Ky., April 29—Sheriff Winston Wolfe has been returned to Kentucky State Penitentiary for parole violation following an April 21 shooting incident in which he was involved. Wolfe was arrested by Marshall County authorities on two counts of malicious shooting with intent to kill following the shooting of a Paducah taxi driver, Lowell (Buddy) Smith, 1035 Park Ave.

Wolfe, 59, who was living in Benton following parole on a manslaughter charge about a year ago, will face the grand jury in June, Sheriff Sam Meyers said today.

He was taken into custody after the taxi driver was shot twice during an incident in a driveway of a house on U. S. 641, about two miles north of Benton. Sheriff Meyers said Wolfe fired several shots at officers before being taken into custody.

According to reports, Smith had picked up Wolfe at a Paducah bar and Wolfe had the taxi driver stop at the residence so he could borrow the money to pay Smith.

Smith is reported to be improving at a Paducah hospital.

Art Guild To Offer Painting Classes Here This Summer

The Murray Art Guild will sponsor classes this summer in art for both children and adults, according to Edna Milliken of the Guild.

Landscape courses will be offered for adults and general painting classes will be offered for children, Mrs. Milliken said.

The courses will be taught by Anthony Droege of the Murray State University Art Department and will begin in June.

The classes will be open to the public and will cost $30 for each series.

Signup for the courses will be tonight at 7 p.m. at the Art Guild on E. Main Street.

The children's course will be limited to 15 members and the adult course to 20.

Mrs. Milliken asked that anyone desiring further information come to the meeting at the Guild tonight.

Crackdown on Litterers

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI)—A new anti-litter bill believed to be the toughest in Canada has been introduced in the British Columbia Legislature by Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

The bill, if passed, would require all manufacturers of beer and soft drinks to make a two-cent refund on cans, bottles and other containers. Another section prohibits the discharge of domestic sewage or waste from travel trailers, mobile homes, pleasure boats or houseboats into any fresh water or on land.

Negroes Spurn Coffee

NEW YORK (UPI): American Negroes drink half as much coffee per capita as white, but nobody knows why for sure.

If 15 million of the 22 million black in the country could be induced to increase their coffee consumption from the present cup and a half a day to three cups a day, imports of unroasted coffee would have to be increased by 4 per cent, or more than one million sacks.

DR. WILLIAM STRUNNING, an executive of the Pan American Coffee Office, said, "A great percentage of American Negroes drink coffee. The problem is, they drink much less than whites and we can't find out why."

Many American Negroes were raised in the South or are descendants of southerners, and coffee consumption in that region of the United States traditionally has been lower than in the cold northern regions.

The fact that many Negroes work outdoors, where it is not always easy to grab a fast cup of coffee, is another factor offered as a possible explanation of the phenomenon.

For the beer industry, the Negro market represents the difference between profit and loss. Any brewery that fails to woo the sector of the market is heading straight for disaster.

Man who wants to skip vacation is risk to boss

NEW YORK (UPI): With another vacation season coming up shortly, many companies again are faced with the problem of executives who resist taking one.

"According to business psychologists, the man who wants to skip his vacation nearly always is a risk of some kind to the company and himself. Rarely is his excuse for staying on the job valid," said Smith Montgomery of Personnel Psychology Center in New York.

There are some timid souls, widowed or divorced or just lonely, who simply can't face the prospect of a two-week break in their routine," Montgomery said. "They wouldn't know what to do with themselves and might just sit in their rooms or on a park bench the whole two weeks."

THEN THERE'S the man who wants to pile up time credit to retire early or the fellow who is facing compulsory retirement and hates to give up his work until he has to.

But these aren't the types who cause top management the most worry. The most serious problem is the executive who won't take a vacation because he can't stand his family—even for a week.

According to Dr. Ralph Collins, consulting psychiatrist for Eastman Kodak in Rochester, N.Y., this executive likely will become dogmatic and irascible at the office, reducing morale and efficiency in his department.

There are many other executive types who want to skip vacations—virtually all bad, Montgomery says.

One is the fellow who's afraid someone else will be sitting at his desk permanently when he gets back.

THE SPENDTHRIFT who can't afford a vacation is another common type. Often he covers up by pretending the company can't spare his services. He manages to have some large project on hand to look after during vacation season.

Then there are those who really think they are indispensable—that the department couldn't get along without them for a few weeks.

WORLD WEEK

New Developments In World Of Religion Are Significant

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

A pot pourri of recent developments in the world of religion which may be significant and certainly are rather startling.

The Blue Hills Baptist Church of San Jose, Calif., has informed its members they henceforth may use credit cards instead of cash, if they wish, to make contributions.

Tables placed at convenient locations in the church sanctuary are equipped with blank charge forms and charge card imprints. Before the collection basket is passed, an interval of time is provided for those so desiring to go to a nearby table, fill out and sign a charge card. The signed card is then dropped into the basket just as though it were a dollar bill.

The system hasn't been in use long enough for the pastor to determine whether it will result in increased contributions.

A Roman Catholic priest recently conducted a revival meeting at a Southern Baptist church.

This unprecedented event (a few years ago, it would have been not only unprecedented but unthinkable) took place at Vestavia Hills Baptist Church in Birmingham, Ala., on March 15.

Fr. Daune Stenzel, a Franciscan priest who has been highly successful in leading spiritual renewal movements in Catholic parishes in Louisville, Ky., accepted an invitation to conduct worship services and discussion groups at the Baptist church.

"We were very impressed by Father Stenzel," says the Rev. Otis Brooks, pastor of the host church. "He expressed in a vital way the need of a personal experience with Christ for religion to be transforming."

For the first time in history, a Jew has been appointed a professor of theology at the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome.

Dr. David Neiman, who has been a full-time member of the theological faculty at Boston College since 1966, will go to Rome next spring to assume his new chair in the world's oldest and most prestigious Roman Catholic seminary.

Dr. Neiman, an ordained rabbi, will teach Old Testament literature, Jewish history, and Jewish theology to future Catholic priests.

He calls his appointment "a very big step toward greater understanding between Judaism and Christianity."

"There seems to be a sincere desire on the part of Christians to learn more about the nature of Judaism and the Jewish people—and to learn directly from Jews rather than from second-hand sources," the rabbi said.

Despite a falling off in church attendance, and an apparent general decline in public interest in religion, scripture distribution by the American Bible Society increased last year by nearly 50 per cent.

The 154-year-old society, supported by voluntary contributions from churches and individuals, distributed a record total of 76,216,553 scriptural items, including 660,250 complete Bibles, 6,876,794 New Testaments, 8,063,216 pamphlets containing one or more complete books of the Bible, 60,240,150 "selections" comprising less than a full book of the Bible, 369,671 "Talking Bible" records and tapes for the blind, and 6,472 braille volumes.

The Rev. Dr. James Z. Netting, executive secretary of the society's national distribution department, attributes the increased distribution to a growing use of scripture in man-to-man "personal evangelism" carried on by devout individuals who are distressed by the apparent recession of public interest in religion.

Time Near For Alfalfa Weevils

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Keep a sharp lookout for the alfalfa weevil, for the time is close at hand for the insect to do its damage, University of Kentucky entomologists warned.

Many growers in the central and western parts of Kentucky may need to spray within the next several days, Wesley W. Gregory, UK Extension entomologist, advised.

When 25 per cent of the alfalfa tips show damage, control measures should be started, he said. Local geographic and climatic conditions will determine just when the weevil will appear in your area, so careful inspection of your fields is the only sure way to determine their presence.

Watch the weather. The best conditions for spraying are when no rain is expected, the temperature is above 60°F., and the wind is calm.

The recent spring rains may keep you and your spray equipment out of the fields. Just as soon as the fields dry up the weather is clear, get in those fields and spray for control.

Rain immediately following insecticide application will, of course, wash the material off, but if the insecticide has had time to dry on the plants before a rain, very little will be lost.

Strong winds prevent good coverage because of drift, and lower temperatures cause many insecticides to be less effective. Recommended insecticides for alfalfa weevil control should be on your shelves and your sprays cleaned and ready to roll, Gregory concluded.

A copy of the UK publication "Alfalfa Weevil Control for 1970," Misc. 324-D and additional information may be obtained from your local County Extension office.

Nuns sue students

MT. ANGEL, Ore. (UPI) — An order of nuns has sued two college students for $6,000 for trimming branches from the top of a 90-year-old sequoia tree. The Benedictine Sisters of Mt. Angel brought the suit because, they said, the trimming ruined the symmetry of the tree, one of the tallest sequoias in Oregon.

Puerto Rico Has 100,000 Heroin Users

By CONSTANCE HARRIS

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — This Caribbean island entered the 1970's with a giant monkey on its back—a $100 million a year heroin habit.

To the casual visitor, this vivid, palm-fringed island seems far removed from the urban decay back home. Yet Puerto Ricans are "shooting" more drugs than their mainland cousins, and the rate is rising.

Authorities estimate there are 100,000 heroin addicts on this island of 2.7 million people.

And the island lacks the funds for the full-scale attack needed to reverse its climbing addiction rate.

After a few false starts, a coordinated government program to combat addiction is taking shape, its critics say it is too little, too late.

Only a handful of the island's addicts are receiving help. Some 2,000 addicts are now being treated at government facilities here, and even those programs are voluntary.

The government is planning its hopes on a pilot program using methadone. It began in January, with 48 addicts enrolled.

The value of the program, which shifts the addict from heroin to less harmful methadone, is still questionable. An obvious benefit is in dollars and cents: An addict with a $70 per day heroin habit can be treated on methadone for less than 10 cents a day, according to Secretary of Social Services Efran Santiago.

But critics say that at best, the program can only eliminate some of the social ills surrounding addiction.

Two decades ago, migration to the mainland was hailed as the answer to the island's economic woes. In recent years, however, the migration pattern has reversed itself, and one of the biggest problems the young Puerto Rican brought home with him from New York's ghettos was drugs, according to police.

Has Become Bridge Jose Nunez Barber, who heads the Treasury Department's office of special investigations which enforces federal narcotics laws, said Puerto Rico has become a bridge connecting the poppy fields of the Orient with the lucrative U.S. drug market.

He estimates that $400 million in hard drugs pass over that bridge annually, concealed by innocent-seeming tourists and students passing through San Juan International Airport.

The federal government apparently is becoming concerned about the flow of drugs through Puerto Rico, which Nunez said has replaced New York, Miami and Montreal as major points of entry. The Federal Office of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs will open a two-man intelligence office here in July.

If the flow of heroin into the island can be dried up, the government addiction control campaign may stand a chance.

For art lovers

NASHUA, N.H. (UPI) — A collection of about 50 paintings, entitled "Paintings of New England Artists," will be on display May 3-Sept. 13 at the Arts and Science Center in Nashua.

$400 MILLION LOSER — On paper, that is, H. Ross Perot (above) is a $400 million loser as result of a two-day "bear raid" on stock of his Electronic Data Systems Corp., which drops him from billionaire to mere multi-millionaire. He owns 81 per cent of the 11.7 million shares of the Texas firm. At 15¢ it the Texas firm, at 25¢ times had been selling at 25¢ times per share earnings.

RAINSTICK JUNCTION is open again in Chicago, with Mary Alice Hughes making a selection here. It's the Chicago and North Western Railway's service to commuters, from the supply of umbrellas collected in lost and found. Commuters may borrow one without charge, and are asked to return it.

PEKING'S KEY MAN — The key man in Peking's announcement of launching Red China's first orbiting space satellite is believed to be Chien Hsue-shen (above). He is a graduate in aeronautical engineering at California Institute of Technology.

Has Volkswagen finally flipped?

No, we haven't flipped. We've just gone ahead and turned out a Beetle that looks like the fun car it really is.

You see, the normal, everyday Beetle is somewhat deceptive. Underneath that mild-mannered appearance lurks a 4 on the floor, gearshift, synchromesh transmission, 4 wheel independent suspension, and a 14.3 to 1 steering ratio.

That, as any Beetle owner will tell you, is a fun car to drive.

But there's still that mild-mannered appearance.

So enter the Formula Vee Beetle. Complete with racing stripes. Hood scoop

Mag wheels. Radial tires. Fanfare horns. Taper tip exhaust pipes.

On the inside, a racing type steering wheel. Sports gearshift lever. Wood grained dash.

How about that?

Then there are some extras we can put in like a tachometer, an exhaust extractor, rallye shocks and other goodies. To turn the Beetle on in your particular style.

Come see the Formula Vee Beetle. It's as much fun to look at as it is to drive. The Formula Vee Beetle.

Hmm.

Maybe we have flipped, after all.

Bank Credit Cards Decline In March

The sharpest decline in consumer use of bank credit cards in 27 months occurred in March.

This is the report from the continuous field survey of the National Federation of Independent Business. During that month independent retailers who accept credit cards reported only 19 percent of their volume was transacted on them.

This was down from 21 percent reported in January and February. The biggest drop previously found was in November and December of last year when it dropped to 17 percent, from a long-standing level of 19 percent.

At the same time the percentage of independent retailers accepting credit cards showed a gain. In March, 36 percent reported they honor the cards, as compared to 33 percent during the first two months of the year.

On the Pacific Coast this ratio of acceptance hit an all-time high with 54 percent now saying they honor the cards.

The decline in the volume written on the cards creates some grounds for conjecture, according to Federation researchers. One interpretation could be, it is felt, that consumers are curtailing their spending on credit.

Another explanation could perhaps be that many bank credit card holders have charged up to the limit placed on their card, and that use of the cards will be curtailed for some time. This seems to tie-in with the high volume of 21 percent reported done on the cards during January and February.

One of the most interesting developments that will show in the next 30 to 60 days will be the impact of the use of BankAmericards for the payment of Federal and/or state income taxes.

In an unexpected move this California bank offered holders of their cards a form of check to be drawn either for the payment of Federal and/or state income taxes, with the card holder paying only 1 (one) percent of the amount for this service, plus the usual monthly credit charge of 1½ percent per month. Customarily the bank credit cards have been discounting retailers from 2 to 6 percent of the sales slip.

But, inasmuch as the usual tax bill runs into a substantial figure, there is a strong possibility that many card holders will use up the entire limit of their credit for tax, making the card unusable for an extended period. If this occurs, it will probably show up in the survey returns from retailers on credit card usage in the next few months ahead.

In only one area, the Pacific states, has acceptance of credit cards by independent retailers gone over the 50 percent mark to hit 54 percent. This is followed by the East South Central states with 45 percent, the Mountain states with 41 percent and the South Atlantic states with 39 percent.

Acceptance of bank credit cards by the larger independent retailers appears to be growing. While even last year the acceptance of them by these larger stores, those with 50 employees or more, was far below the national average, the latest data shows 39 percent in this group now say they honor the cards as compared to 36 percent of retailers of all sizes.

Craftsmen's Fair Set For Berea

By Jim Warren
FRANKFORT, Ky. — The Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsmen (KGAC) will hold its fourth annual Artists and Craftsmen's Fair in Berea, May 21-24.

Some 125 artists and craftsmen from throughout Kentucky will exhibit and sell their work. Products will range from the traditional to the contemporary — such things as handmade candles, hand-carved wooden bowls and figures, pottery, baskets, quilts, chairs, rugs, paintings and prints, sculpture and weaving.

Some of the craftsmen will demonstrate their methods of making the items. Visitors to the Fair can see bowls being carved, chairs being made, jewelry being created and rugs and pillows being woven.

A highlight of the Fair will be the main exhibit of the KGAC members. The exhibit will give a general picture of the fine quality of arts and crafts produced by Kentuckians.

The Fair will be held in the wooded area of the historic Indian Fort Theatre just outside Berea. The grouping of traditional and contemporary crafts becomes a montage of the Kentucky mountain area's creative potential.

Food and picnic facilities will be available on the grounds. Activities will run from 10:00 a.m. until 9:00 p.m. and from noon till 5:00 on Sunday. Admission is $1 with special group rates and children under 12 admitted free.
